AS TO THE NEXT GOVERNOR

Gov. Fear, in the opinion of this paper, would stand an excellent chance of holding the executive chair for some months at least after March 4, when Democracy attains the residency.

It is a little early for Bourbon jubilation over prospects of getting one of the Jeffersonian into the governorship next March. If we and Mr. Wilson's character are right, he will not make a change in office that would seriously disturb the orderly progress of territorial legislation, and certainly it would upset the whole course of the legislature of 1913 if a change in governors should be made in the middle of the sixty-day session. What chance would new governor have to familiarize himself with the conditions of the territory sufficiently to authoritatively upon legislation, were he named in the middle of the session? What would be initiative, as administrations should initiate?

He would be lost in a maze of difficulties from the outset, and the entire territory would suffer.

As a matter of practical fact, there is little hope for the Democratic party of this territory to demand a change in governors next March.

Upon the most essential and important measures that will be brought up, both parties are agreed in principle and should with which trouble agree in detail.

The Republican territorial platform calls for revision of the land laws, improvements of roads, bays and wharves, a public utilities comission, a direct primary law, equal suffrage for women and extension of support for the public school system. These are among the most important planks.

The Democratic territorial platform was adopted in April, living to the wishes of Mc-Ilroy, then the dominant figure in his party in this territory. The Democratic county platform adopted in September certainly is a fairer expression of the party's policy in this territory. Taking up the Democratic county platform it will be seen that for every one of planks adopted by the Republicans, there a similar plank in the Bourbon document.

There will doubtless be differences over the formerals to be drawn, but they should be reconciled.

Democratic and Republican platforms are not greatly different. It is suggested that Democrats will be able to control legislation in the Republican majorities in house and senate.

They are not strong enough to break the veto of a Democratic governor. But if the parties are on the general policies to be carried out legislation, the veto should not be necessary as a crack of the party whip.

Both parties are working toward the same and thinking Democrats will probably not try to defeat what is their policy as well as Republican policy, by putting a new governor into office during the session. And unless there is a very strong demand on the part of Democratic leaders here for the appointment of one of their kind immediately upon Mr. Wilson's as-umption of office, the next president is not likely to disturb Hawaiian affairs while vital questions are being shaped harmoniously. Before Mr. Wilson is going to have his hands full of partisan troubles on the mainland.

SPECIAL ELECTION NEWS AND FEATURES

TOMORROW

How does Woodrow Wilson stand on the tariff?

That is a question that the people of Hawaii are asking, for the next president is going to have something to say on the revision of the sugar schedules.

The question is answered in an authorized interview with Gov. Wilson that will be printed in this paper tomorrow. Wilson discusses the tariff as the base of all present economic problems in the United States. He makes his own stand pretty plain. And he is likely to be no more conservative after election than before. His discussion is an illuminating one that should be given wide attention in Hawaii.

The Saturday Star-Bulletin will contain not only Gov. Wilson's important talk on the tariff, but personal sketches of the two men who will stand at the head of the national administration.

That's right. Lay it onto the mosquitoes and the bananas.

LETTERS ON TIMELY TOPICS

STREET-LOAFERS AND POLICE.

Editor Honolulu Star-Bulletin,
Sir:—As an instance (among many) of what the public of this city has to put up with in connection with the policing of the streets, and which the voters of Honolulu on last Tuesday signified their willingness to enjoy (?) for a couple of years more, will state that myself and wife in coming from the Bijou theater last night after the first performance, turned up Hotel street toward Nuuanu to meet our car.

At the corner of Hotel and Nuuanu at the Makino drug store stood a crowd of loafers near the curb and we must needs turn out into the dirt and wet of the street to cross to the other side of Nuuanu, the loafers making no move to clear the sidewalk.

Arriving at the other side of Nuuanu street, a Japanese came out of the barber shop at the corner, carrying a number of cuspidors. At the curb of the sidewalk he swashed a little water into them and emptied the contents into the street. Nice work, eh?

It is wonderful what people will put up with and then "holler" for more of the same kind.
